

Epistola ad P. J. de S.

[illegible][illegible][illegible]

Each of the other 7 children shall be given a certain amount of money when they get married or desire to emigrate to America. If they do not get married, they shall be given all they stand in need of in sickness and in health. For this they are required to work for the common good of the household.

The illegitimate child of Theresia Figge shall have food and lodging in case she behaves herself.

This was read to and signed and approved by the widow. The local priest verified her signature, signed as well as others.

A few days later the parties appear before the court. Those who cannot represent themselves are accompanied by their Guardians. The contract is presented. Some additions are to be made and some corrections which is then ratified by the judge

Handwritten text in German, likely a legal document or contract, written in cursive script. The text is organized into several paragraphs, with some sections marked by horizontal lines. The handwriting is dense and characteristic of 18th-century German cursive. The document appears to be a legal agreement or a set of conditions, possibly related to inheritance or family matters, as suggested by the English text on the left. The text is written on a single page, with some corrections or additions visible in the lower sections.

Handwritten document, likely a legal or official record, featuring cursive script. The text is written on a page with a dark, textured background. The document includes several lines of text, some of which are crossed out or corrected. The text is written in a cursive script, characteristic of the 18th or 19th century. The document is dated "No. 5968" and "F. 6/10". The text is written in a cursive script, characteristic of the 18th or 19th century. The document is dated "No. 5968" and "F. 6/10". The text is written in a cursive script, characteristic of the 18th or 19th century. The document is dated "No. 5968" and "F. 6/10".

Images taken from film 817258 of the Family History Library Salt Lake City, Utah